Saint Marin

Saint Martin of Tours, (born 316 or 317) was a native of Sabaria, Pannonia. His father was a senior officer in the Roman army. Martin was named after Mars, the god of war, meaning 'the brave, the courageous'. The family moved to Pavia in Italy. When he was 15, being the son of an officer, he had to join the army himself. He was stationed in Gaul and later became a monk in the region of Poitiers.

While Martin was still a soldier he experienced a vision that became the most-repeated story about his life. He was at the gates of the city of Amiens with his soldiers when he met a scantily dressed beggar. He impulsively cut his own military cloak in half and shared it with the beggar. That night he dreamed that Jesus came to him and returned the half cloak Martin had shared with him. He heard Jesus say to the angels: "Here is Martin, the Roman soldier who is not baptized; he has clad me." When Martin woke his cloak was restored. The miraculous cloak was preserved as a relic and entered the relic collection of the Merovingian kings of the Franks.

The dream had such an impact on Saint Martin that he was baptized the next day and became a Christian. He decided to leave the army and became a monk near the city of Tours.

Martin worked for the conversion to Christianity of the populace, making many preaching trips through western and central France. In the course of this work he became extremely popular, and in 371 became bishop of Tours. He refused to live in the city and instead founded a monastery for his residence a short distance outside the walls. The monastery, known in Latin as the 'Larger Monastery' or Maius monasterium became known as Marmoutier in later French.

St. Martin died on November 8, 397 at Candés, Tours, France of natural causes; by his request, he was buried in the Cemetery of the Poor on November 11, 397; his relics rested in the basilica of Tours, a scene of pilgrimages and miracles, until 1562 when the cathedral and relics were destroyed by militant Protestants; some small fragments on his tomb were found during construction excavation in 1860.

Dear Angel ever at my side, How lovely you must be... To leave your home in heaven, to guard a child like me. When I'm far away from home or maybe hard at play... I know you will protect me, from harm along the way. Your beautiful and shining face, I cannot see, though you are near. The sweetness of your lovely voice, I cannot really hear. When I pray, you're praying too. Your prayer is just for me. But when I sleep you never do, for you're watching over me.
