Saints Sarkis and Bacchus

Feastday - October 7

Saints Sarkis and Bacchus, were third century Roman soldiers who are commemorated as martyrs by the Catholic church. The saints' story is told in the Greek text known as The Passion of Sarkis and Bacchus.

According to text Sarkis and Bacchus were Roman citizens and high-ranking officers of Caesar Galerius Maximianus's army. They were held high in his favor until they were exposed as secret Christians when they attempted to avoid accompanying a Roman official into a pagan temple with the rest of his bodyguard. After they persisted in refusing to sacrifice to Zeus in the company of the emperor Galerius, they were publicly humiliated by being chained and dressed in female attire and paraded around town. Galerius then sent them to Barbalissos in Mesopotamia to be tried by Antiochus, the military commander there and an old friend of Sarkis. Antiochus could not convince them to give up their faith, however, and Bacchus was beaten to death. The next day he appeared to Sarkis and encouraged him to remain strong.

Over the next days, Sarkis was also brutally tortured and finally beheaded at Resafa, where his death was marked by miraculous happenings. Their feast day is October 7. The close friendship between Sarkis and Bacchus is strongly emphasized, making them one of the most famous examples of paired saints.
